Betting Guide UFC 256 Betting Guide Choosing your favorite storyline for Saturday's welterweight title fight between Israel Adesanya and Paulo Costa: someone 0 should go. It's a legitimate grudge match between two dudes who really don't like each other. We've got an elite kickboxer going up against a fearless smashing machine. Adesanya could use an interesting memo after putting up an absolute snoozefest against Romero - fans still About that one. The good news is that Costa would love to oblige. In fact, the Brazilian has gone to great lengths to get the Kiwis into a fight. We already know that the champion has social media games, but Costa is surprisingly impressive in the area even though English is not his first language. It's expert-level trolling (skip to the 3-minute mark): Adesanya is too smart and too good to get into the slugfest, but Costa will line up going forward at all times. That's what makes this fight so much fun. In the joint main event, Dominick Reyes and Jan Blachowicz set out for an empty light heavyweight title a.k.a. Jon Jones pieces. That's not the most flattering way to frame a championship comparison, but that doesn't mean it's not true. But this is not a deep division at all, so anyone who walks out of #andnew the opportunity to build on their own legacy. Dominick Reyes is a heavy favorite in online sports books, and he has the young and physical talent to be a special fighter in his own right. As always, the UFC's BookMaker.eu also offers plenty of great online betting options for both title fights. Let's take a deeper look and crack the best bets. LAST!👉🇳🇮🇿 @Stylebender vs 🇧🇷 @BorrachinhaMMA 🇲🇪🇽🇮🇸 @DomReyes vs 🇵🇱 @JanBlachowicz. (LIVE on ESPN+ PPV:] pic.twitter.com/jiDO889Lup- UFC (@ufc) September 22, 2020Israel Adesanya -160 vs Paulo Costa +127Fight goes/doesn't go to a decision: +165 / -215Bet It: Adesanya to win at -160This is a stylistic comparison that plays directly to Adesanya's strengths as a counterstriker. When opponents try to force trouble against him, things don't go well. Brad Tavares tried to press it and set it up. Derek Brunson swore to heaven high that he would drag a skinny Adesanya to the ground and be knocked out in the round. Robert Whittaker thought the fight would work and didn't last two rounds. Kelvin Gastelum had some success in the pocket, but was dropped three times in the fifth round after Adesanya caught his time. Costa's entire identity smashes dudes into submission - just look how jacked up he is. Not only does he have the power of a one-hitter quitter, Costa is completely fearless. We're still stunned that he has the cojones to walk down Yoel freakin' Romero. One doesn't just... Walk down Romero. It makes it a lot of fun to watch, but it will also be his downfall. Before Adesanya became an MMA pro fighter, he was already a special kickboxer. It's going to be a standup battle (no one's trying to takedown inside the octagon), and we're going to lean on Adesanya every time in that scenario. Costa's frame and highlight rolls keep the line competitive, and we recommend you take advantage of the champion's affordable price. Dominick Reyes -250 vs. Jan Blachowicz +194Fight goes/not go to decision: +170 / -230Solid Pick: Reyes to win at -245It's not a cheap pick, but it's the right one. Reyes brings advantages that can't be ignored. Physically, he is only 30 years old compared to 37-year-old Blachowicz. He's two inches taller at 6'4. A former football star, The Devastator is an incredible athlete who fell just shy of reaching the NFL. He is bigger, faster and more explosive than his opponent. We're not sure where Blachowicz can tilt this fight for his own good. Pole is a more experienced grappler, but doesn't have the wrestling to knock Reyes down. His jab was criminally underestimated and basically everything he needed to best blast Jared Cannonnier - but it wasn't enough to overcome his high and speed loss. Only a fool would underestimate a man who has won seven of his last eight, but Blachowicz never really seemed to scare anyone, and there are good reasons for that. Plus, it feels like Reyes time. There are a lot of people out there who feel like he deserves a win over Jon Jones. Take a minute to think about that last sentence: Reyes and well enough to go toe to toe with MMA GOAT. You can't say that about Blachowicz. Solid Pick: Fight goes to the +170 decisionWe just spent the last few paragraphs praising Reyes, but his opponent is by no way a scrub. He was knocked out by Thiago Santos in 2019, but it marked the first time Blachowicz had been suspended since 2011. As a smart veteran with all-around skills, the Pole will likely avoid taking too much damage and making it onto the scorecard. Scorecard.
